

THE LIBRI LIMITED

22/11/2023

Dear Okechukwu Ofili Founder/CEO of Okada Books & your Wonderful Team,

I am quite saddened and dishevelled when I heard the news about the closure of Okada Books. In the unpredictable and dynamic landscape of running a business in Nigeria, challenges are inevitable and most times insurmountable, and navigating these challenges is really an arduous journey. Being the pathfinder in the sector we also operate in, and the golden torch for the rest of us, this is one loss we all will mourn for a long time. On behalf of MyLibri Books, I extend our deepest sympathies to you and your team during this difficult time.

As fellow members of the business community, I recognise the dedication and hard work that went into building Okada Books and the sheer determination to take on the challenges in the Nigerian business terrain, that takes a lot of guts and you guys have done brilliantly well.

Okada Books was home to a lot of indigenous Authors; many of whom were sorely adrift before Okada Books came along, you gave hope and provided a platform for writers and readers to work together, creating a thriving community in the process.

Though the outcome is not what I desired for your business, and definitely not what your desires are as well, I am proud of what you guys did, what you achieved. You and your team should hold your heads high. The market will miss Okada Books.

Once again, our heartfelt sympathy go out to you and your team. Change is never easy, but it also presents an opportunity for new beginnings. I look forward to what you will work on next, and I wish you every success you desire.

Sincerely,

20231122
